

ANN W. ROSSLER

As a leadership development consultant, certified coach, mediator and facilitator, Ann utilizes her over 20 years of executive experience to improve the performance of organizations and individuals by helping them find the courage to communicate about what they want to change.

Prior to starting her own business, she was a senior executive for a national physician medical association and a Fortune 500 company.

Currently working with the George Mason University Leadership Legacy program and the Virginia Commonwealth University Grace Harris Leadership Institute, and Pennsylvania State University, she has also worked with the Virginia Community College System, Tidewater Community College and Northern Virginia Community College.

Adept at recognizing and developing leadership talent, she helps clients deal with current situations and effectively envision their future:

"Over the six months I worked with Ann, I was amazed by my personal, professional, and leadership growth. Through her participant-centered approach, I was able to identify my strengths and areas for growth in the ways I made decisions and interacted with others. Her questions and insights enabled me to develop skills and strategies that worked for me. Her individualized approach meant that we always focused on who I am, what my goals are, and the steps I could take to move forward." Associate Professor, George Mason University

Highly organized and enthusiastic with a positive and motivating style, she is a creative problem solver and communicator. Ann focuses on the specifics of goals– not generalities, the power that attitude holds in success and the importance of self-awareness in becoming a good leader. She is an effective personal sounding board -- responding to concerns and issues with insightful feedback and asking questions to prompt self-examination.

Ann is a credentialed coach by the International Coach Federation (PCC), a certified mediator (Supreme Court of Virginia), and a Gallup Strengths Coach.

She is a graduate of Leadership Arlington, an active member of the Arlington Chamber of Commerce, a former board member of the Northern Virginia Mediation Service, and a past Vice President of the Women Alliance for Financial Education.
